Uncompromising quality.

In the seemingly unlikely event of a fire, the quality of the fire doors used in a building can severely impact on the safety of its occupants. It is during these events that products such as fire doors need to perform to specification and cannot be found wanting in any aspect of their design or construction.

When selecting a fire door for a building application where the safety of people and property is at risk, there should be no compromise.

For total peace of mind, choose Pyropanel with the knowledge that our fire doors will perform when put to the test in a fire.
